Sixteen Percent Cut in Farm Appropriations Recommended to House

One of Toughest Political Issues Is Raised by the Committee's Recommendation

The Report

Largest Reduction Made in Any Single Major Appropriation Measure

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—A 16 per cent cut in President Roosevelt's farm appropriation estimates was recommended to the house today by its appropriations committee, raising one of the session's toughest political issues.

For the fiscal year beginning July 1 Mr. Roosevelt asked an appropriation of $788,929,519 for the agriculture department. The committee trimmed this by $129,678,812, chiefly by slashing $72,678,812 from the surplus commodity disposal item and $47,975,000 asked for the 1937 sugar act.

These and various small cuts added up to the largest reduction made in any single major appropriation measure by the committee this session—despite the fact that sentiment for farm spending frequently is stronger than that for any other type of expenditure. Congressional leaders characterize a farm appropriation as the toughest test of an economy movement in congress.

Asserting that no appropriation can ever be said to be wholly adequate, the committee said in its report to the house:

"The current status of federal finances has imposed a necessity for retrenchment and the committee has endeavored to apply the cuts in this bill where they would be the least harmful to the public interest."

The committee said it had been advised that the regular fund for disposal of surplus commodities—30 per cent of all tariff receipts—would amount to about $100,000,000 in 1941, or about $7,500,000 more than was available this year. As for the sugar act, money, the subcommittee which prepared the bill, made no comment, but Rep. Dinkins (R.-Ill.), who initiated the move to eliminate the $47,975,000 altogether, said the act expires at the end of this year, and he had "grave doubts" about the whole sugar program.

There should either be processing taxes on all major food commodities or none on any," he added.

The committee followed President Roosevelt's suggestions by refusing to ask a $225,000,000 appropriation for parity payments.

The bill contained the usual item of $498,000,000 for soil conservation benefit payments.

Other major cuts below the budget estimates recommended were: Forest service, $4,620,000; eradication of cattle tuberculosis and Bang's disease, $1,020,000; bureau of entomology and plant quarantine, $873,000; weather bureau, $605,750; relocation of nearby Arlington experiment farm, $500,000.

Budget estimates for forest protection and management were cut $212,485 to $10,000,000.

The committee also chopped $2,500,000 off of budget estimates of $10,000,000 for construction of forest roads and trails. The committee's report said the reduction would eliminate only proposed new construction of about 245 miles.

"I was afraid I wouldn't know how to act at a feast of political royalists who could lay down $100 a plate for dinner."

"A certain friend of mine," the minority congressional leader continued, "took occasion to say at the dinner he was afraid I wouldn't come because I didn't want to go to heaven with that bunch."

"I would like to go to heaven with anyone, but confidentially I have a strong suspicion they're not headed in the right direction. I'd rather take my chances of getting there with you Kansas folks than with the $100-a-plate crowd."

Water Consumption Here

Comparison Made With Other Cities

Mayor Heiselman announced today that he had sent a communication to the city water board, calling attention to the immense quantity of water which is being consumed in Kingston as compared with our sister cities of Poughkeepsie and Newburgh. It seems that the city is using as much water each day now as we do in July, when the water is being used for fountains, pools, street flushing, wading pools, sprinkling and when more household water is used for bathing and washing purposes.

Kingston is now using about 4,157,000 gallons of water per day, while Newburgh is using only 2,800,000 gallons and Poughkeepsie 4,200,000 gallons.

The Mayor has prepared the following table which shows how much water is being used per person per day in the following cities and the village of Port Ewen:

City	Population	Daily consumption	Per capita daily consumption
Kingston	28,088	4,157,000 gals.	160 gals.
Newburgh	31,275	2,800,000 gals.	88 gals.
Poughkeepsie	40,288	4,200,000 gals.	100 gals.

It is understood that in Port Ewen the average daily consumption per capita is 40 gallons.

It is understood that the mayor recommended to the water board that an investigation be made to determine where all of the city's water is going and to take such steps as may be necessary to conserve the city's water supply, especially in view of the fact that Cooper Lake is only three-fourths filled and that we are daily using more water than is going into Cooper Lake.

Newburgh and Poughkeepsie are completely metered, while in Kingston water meters are installed only in industrial and commercial establishments. It is understood that almost half the water used in Kingston is used during the night hours, which indicates that there are important leaks somewhere or else householders are letting the water supply run all night.

Council Will Be Asked to Establish Dog Pound Here

February 10 Dead Line Set For Dog Owners to Get Licenses—Aldermen to Appoint Warden

Establishment of a dog pound in charge of a dog warden will be asked at the February meeting of the common council as the outcome of a conference held Monday afternoon by Mayor C. J. Heiselman, Alderman-at-large John Schwenk, Corporation Counsel John M. Cashin, Acting Chief of Police Charles Phinney, City Clerk E. J. Dempsey and City Marshal John Melville.

The state agricultural and markets law as amended requires that all dog licenses must be obtained on or before February 10 of each year, and with the setting up of a dog pound in charge of a dog warden all unlicensed dogs will be seized and placed in the pound, where they will be kept for three days and then either sold or destroyed.

The location of the dog pound is made by the alderman who also appoints the dog warden. The dog warden is paid out of the fees obtained for dog licenses in the city.

Under the state law if a dog owner failed to license his dog on or before February 10, the city clerk is required to bring an action in city court against such a person on a charge of harboring an unlicensed dog. The penalty is $10. If, before the return date of the summons served on the delinquent dog owner, the owner may obtain a license and also pay for the cost of serving the summons.

If a license is not obtained the action is prosecuted in police court and if judgment is rendered, an execution is obtained and if same is returned unsatisfied it is the duty of the dog warden to seize and dispose of the dog. The owner may obtain the dog from the dog pound by paying $10 and costs, plus the license fee. If the dog is in the city pound and held for three days the owner has to pay for the license, $2 for the seizure plus $10 and costs.

Last year there were approximately 2,000 dogs in the city and of that number approximately 400 were unlicensed.

Under the state law 40 per cent of the dog license fees goes to the county treasurer; 10 per cent to the state, and the remaining 50 per cent is used to pay for the cost of the maintenance of the dog pound and the services of the dog warden. If there is any sum remaining of the 50% it is turned over to the police pension fund.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The world's weather has gone off balance.

While Canadians and Americans may think they have been having a severe spell of snow and cold weather, it has not been as disagreeable as they might have expected, judging from past weather performances.

The people of northern Europe have been having their coldest storms in half a century. Ordinarily when severe cold strikes that part of the globe, similar conditions prevail in the northern United States and particularly in the northeastern states, according to R. H. Weightman, official fore-

Protect Wealth By Using Money, Edison Declares

Secretary of Navy Urges Fleet Expansion Now to Safeguard United States Against Attack

Opposes Cut

Sentiment for 'Trimming' Proposed Expenditure Is Seen Dangerous

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—Secretary Edison, advocating approval of the navy's proposed $1,300,000,000 fleet expansion program, told Congress today that in view of dangerous conditions abroad he believed in providing "crushing weapons with our wealth to protect our wealth."

Testifying before the House naval committee, where strong sentiment has developed in favor of trimming the program, Edison declared that even the expansion which the navy recommends would provide only "a fair degree of security."

"War is not a sporting event between evenly matched opponents," the secretary said. "Its aim is to crush the enemy quickly and with minimum loss to ourselves. So I believe in providing crushing weapons with our wealth to protect our wealth."

The secretary asserted that "if we are not strong, our interests, our treasured liberties and our wealth are almost certain to be targets for nations that may show no regard for treaties or what we consider to be national integrity."

"But even predatory nations will think twice before risking conflict with a strong and prepared United States," he continued. "The program I recommend, if authorized, will serve as a deterrent to all possible aggressor nations that the United States intends to protect itself and its interests powerfully and effectively."

Demanding an end to what he called the tendency to limit the size of ships to the maximums fixed in now defunct treaties, Edison said it was "unsound procedure" to limit the navy's fleet.

"If it takes 50,000 tons to carry the guns and armor of a battleship—all right, I say. If a heavy cruiser would be a better ship at 14,000 tons, it is folly to impose weakness by unnecessarily restricting tonnage."

The $1,300,000,000 expansion bill recommended by the navy would authorize construction of 77 new warships as well as additional airplanes and auxiliary vessels. A two-year program being considered by the committee would provide for only 21 new warships.

Edison said it was the navy's realization of the 1940 situation that "makes us believe that we should start building as promptly and as fast and in as great volume as practicable."

Although he said he deplored the huge expenditures involved, he told the committee that "defeat would cost us in money alone more than a dozen navies."

"We of this country have been reluctant to admit unpleasant facts about the structure and working of international society," he added, "but we are now disillusioned and alive to the fact that the importance and security of a nation are measured directly in terms of her ability to defend her interests."

President Is 58 Today And 'Fit as a Fiddle'

Dr. McIntire Says Strenuous Years in White House Left Little Mark on Him

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—President Roosevelt is 58 years old today, and "fit as a fiddle" for either another hard political campaign or the tapering off of a spectacular career in public office.

Which course he will choose remains a mystery. Whatever the decision may be, his physician, Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, says that Mr. Roosevelt is in as "perfect condition as any man of his age could be" for the years ahead.

The President was celebrating his birthday anniversary in a quiet and traditional manner. Throughout the nation, however, the day was being observed with parties and programs to raise funds for a campaign to halt the ravages of infantile paralysis.

Mr. Roosevelt, of course, was taking recognition of that campaign, in a brief radio address to-night (at 11:34 p. m. EST) to the thousands gathered at birthday balls from coast to coast, and in a chat with a host of movie stars who came to Washington to help make the parties here a success.

White House officials tried to keep his day free of appointments, postponing the usual Tuesday press conference until Wednesday.

They announced, however, that he would have a birthday message for Congress. Appropriately enough, in view of the drive against paralysis, the Chief Executive drafted a message outlining his views on starting a $10,000,000 program of constructing small hospitals in communities now without facilities.

In accordance with Roosevelt family custom, the President's birthday cake bore only 21 candles. Members of the family and a small group of old "cronies" will dine at the White House this evening to watch the President cut the cake.

Some of those who will be on hand are original members of the "cuff-links gang," a group of friends dating back to the days when Mr. Roosevelt was an assistant secretary of the navy and then an unsuccessful candidate for the vice-presidency. He gave each of those intimates a set of gold cuff links years ago.

As he passes another milestone, Mr. President is a bit grayer at the temples and the sea in his face are a bit deeper. Otherwise, Dr. McIntire said, the strenuous years in the White House have left little mark on him.

"The past three months particularly have been among the best he has had," McIntire asserted. "He hasn't had a single cold all winter, and that is most unusual."

He said that Mr. Roosevelt's excellent physical shape was due to his ability to brush away the cares of his office at the proper time and relax completely.

Many an evening he keeps a stenographer busy for several hours. It is then that he finds time, for instance, to look over most of the bills sent him by Congress.

He may keep at the task until 11:30 p. m., and then devote some time to his stamp collection before dropping off to sleep. Or he may view a movie in the evening with a group of house guests.

Ordinarily the Chief Executive is awake at 8:30 a. m. One of his luxuries is having breakfast in bed and then mapping out his day.

Monoxide Fumes Kill Two in Car

Young Girl and Man Found Dead in Parked Auto at Poughkeepsie

Eleanor Elliott, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Elliott, of Highland, and Frank Cove, Jr., 32, of Poughkeepsie, were found dead in Cove's car on Beechwood avenue, Poughkeepsie, early this morning. The two were apparent victims of carbon monoxide fumes.

Discovery of the two bodies in the car was made by Poughkeepsie officers who were sent out to investigate whether or not the car left parked on the street had been stolen. The police investigation revealed that the two died accidentally.

Cove, the police said, was married but had not been living with his wife. The girl was employed as a nurse maid in Poughkeepsie. The motor of Cove's car, the police said, had apparently been left running with the hood covered and the fumes went inside the machine.

Finns Raid Russian Harbor and Further Sweep Into Soviet Territory Downing 21 Planes

German Attack

New Wave of German Air Raiders Struck at British Shipping Today

(By The Associated Press)

A Finnish air raid on a Russian harbor, possibly the Kronstadt naval base, and a further aerial sweep into Soviet territory was described by Finland today as German planes renewed fierce attacks on British shipping.

The Finnish high command said 21 Russian planes were downed during air fighting yesterday in which the Finns, carrying air warfare to Soviet soil, bombed troop headquarters and railway stations as well as the Russian port.

Russian land attacks northeast of Lake Ladoga, focus of the principal land fighting, were repulsed, the Finns said.

Britain reported one Nazi raider had been shot down during the second consecutive day of German assaults on shipping off the east coast of the British Isles.

Further friction in British-Japanese relations developed as Japan formally demanded the return of 21 German seamen seized from a Japanese liner January 20 by a British warship.

Finland and Britain today counted the cost of forays by Russian and German bombing planes which yesterday carried out some of the most sweeping raids of Europe's two wars.

Russian warplanes ranged over southern Finland again today but early reports did not show what, if any, damage they inflicted.

Finns viewed the Soviet attacks far behind the battle lines as designed to offset Soviet reverses on the land fronts. The raiders caused fires in half a dozen cities. A Finnish announcement said 33 persons were killed and 36 wounded yesterday but unofficial reports indicated a steeper casualty list.

Russia reported seven Finnish planes were downed during the day's fighting.

At Merchant Shipping

German bombers ranged over the 700-mile stretch of British coast between the Shetland Islands and Kent, concentrating their bombs and machine-gun fire against merchant shipping in stormy British waters.

Fourteen merchantships were attacked but none sunk, the British said. A German announcement declared, however, seven merchant vessels and two patrol ships were sent to the bottom and one British plane downed.

All of the ships involved were British except the Latvian steamer Tautmala aboard which seven men were killed.

British planes took the air against the invaders in spite of fierce winter weather which snarled transportation throughout the British Isles.

Three German planes appeared over the British coast again today but were driven off without success.

Snow blanketed the western front although French and German artillery continued to exchange shells.

Premier Daladier in a radio speech last night warned France that total war "cannot be long in breaking" and accused Adolf Hitler of seeking a world domination "which is absolutely different from all that history has known so far."

"Hitler the conqueror does not deal with nations he has reduced to submission—he destroys them," he said.

His speech was made on the eve of the seventh anniversary of Hitler's rise to power, a date that was marked quietly in Germany due to war conditions. A speech (Continued on Page Nine)

W. L. Willkie Is Urged To Seek the Presidency

Wooster, O., Jan. 30 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie told Wooster friends last night he has received "thousands" of letters urging him to seek the presidency.

"But I'm not running for President," said the head of Commonwealth and Southern Corp. "Of course, it isn't going to happen, but if the nomination were given to me without any strings I would have to accept it. No man in middle life (Willkie is 48) and in good health could do otherwise."

"But I couldn't go out and seek delegates and make two-sided statements. I value my independence. That's what I've been fighting for all these years."

The utilities executive said the letters have arrived at the rate of 200 to 500 a week for several months, and he has answered all of them. Listed in biographies as a Democrat, he has tangled frequently with New Deal agencies—especially the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Old Clock Still Bongs Out Hours on Ellenville Spire

Ellenville, Jan. 29 (AP)—"Bong! Bong! Bong!" Ellenville's town clock is ringing 3 p. m.—just as it has every afternoon for the last 65 years.

And, though paradoxical, the clock is not on the town hall, or Municipal Building, but embellishes the steeple of St. John's Episcopal Church on Market street.

Village residents take the time-piece and bell, which strikes each hour, as a casual part of their everyday lives, however, and probably few have ever wondered about its history.

The Rev. George R. Hiatt, rector, said today that the church was built in 1874 and the clock and bell were installed at that time.

The church has about 250 communicants and was erected as the Humbert Memorial through the generosity of Cornelius Humbert. The edifice was consecrated August 18, 1874, and the clock has since become a living local tradition.

Floyd Howe, church vestryman, said the big timepiece is operated by a simple system of weights and pulleys which articulates with huge white hands on each of four dark dials. The mechanism is "wound up" once a week by a hand-crank.

It has required little repair and has stopped only on rare occasions when the hands were coated with heavy sleet.

August Dalmus, first clock-winder, kept it running for about 20 years and was followed by Frank Witish.

Hans Redl was appointed last spring and is paid $60 annually for the village to wind the clock and keep it in running order.

Ellenville's modest Municipal Building boasts no clock and is surrounded by only a large bell which is rung by hand on auspicious occasions, such as the visit of a celebrity. In such cases, legend says, "the first one to grab the rope, rings the bell."

Snyder Is Named Game Club Head

Nelson W. Snyder was re-elected president of the Ulster County Fish and Game Protective Association at the adjourned annual meeting held in the Municipal Auditorium on Monday evening. Howard Myer was elected vice-president, and the office of secretary-treasurer was left open until later. Walter Weeks was elected a director of the association.

The services of a field superintendent was dispensed with for the year and instead committees will be named from time to time to have charge of the distribution of fish and game throughout the county.

The association went on record as favoring the present trout fishing season with a reduction of a big limit of 15 trout per day.

Later in the season the association will endeavor to arrange to have Martin K. Bovey, former instructor in English at Harvard, in Kingston to deliver his well-known movie lecture, "Rainbow River."

County Court to Open February 5

The February term of County Court will convene at Kingston Monday, February 5, at 2 p. m., with County Judge Frederick G. Traver presiding.

The civil calendar will be taken up during the first week of court, criminal cases probably coming up for action in the second week of the term.

Judge Traver said yesterday that the case of Schreiber vs. The Callanan Road Improvement Co., for damages alleged to be due on account of negligence, would not come up at this term of court.

Cornell Street House Damaged

Fire, which originated in an upholstered chair in the living room of James B. Fitzgerald's home at 65 Cornell street, swept through the living room, doing considerable damage before it was brought under control by the fire department following a call from Box 5131 at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The fire spread rapidly until the entire living room was in flames. The fire generated such heat that it blistered the paint on the stairs and in the upstairs hall of the two-story frame house, which is owned by Jacobson & Sons.

The fire department estimated the damage to the furniture at approximately $300. There was also considerable damage to the house.

Fatally Shot

Watchung, N. J., Jan. 30 (AP)—Col. Norman H. Meranus, 51, of the 113th Infantry, New Jersey National Guard regiment in Newark, was fatally shot last night by his own 45 calibre pistol when he tripped and fell during target practice at the Plainfield Shooting Club's outdoor range.

Young Ball holds the rifle used by his father, who was absolved by a grand jury. The jurors returned kidnapping indictments against another man accused as an accomplice of Strake in a plot to extort money from the father.

THERE STANDS FINLAND

If you were to name the greatest nation in the world, would it be the richest; would it be the one whose possessions are the most wideflung; would it be the most populous or that which boasted of the most destructive guns and the most powerful army? Perhaps it would be that nation which paid its debts, which, courageous as the Greeks at Thermopylae, fights a barbarian horde, which faces annihilation rather than compromise its liberty—the nation whose men today die on the battlefield and whose women and babies starve and freeze behind the lines. If this is the nation you would seek, there stands Finland.

MUST WOMEN BEAR ARMS?

Another middle-aged woman has been refused American citizenship because she was unwilling to promise to "bear arms for this country" in time of war. This recurring phenomenon in American life ought to be of more than momentary interest to newspaper readers.

Why require that women citizens, native or naturalized, bear arms? Is America planning to draft women into the fighting services as Russia does?

If patriotic judges wish to test the potential loyalty and usefulness in a war emergency of naturalized women citizens, why not ask the applicant whether they would be willing to make surgical dressings for their country? Or work at refugee stations helping to feed, clothe and hearten the children and old folks whom modern war separates from home and family? Or release able-bodied men for active military duty by taking over their civilian tasks in farm or factory?

Or why not simply ask an applicant for citizenship whether she believes honestly that in time of war her loyalty and service would be given to the land of her adoption wholeheartedly and without reservation? Somehow, it seems degrading to have in official records the demand that a woman pledge herself to bear arms before she can become a citizen of a country that doesn't raise its girls to be soldiers.

AN UNREADY ARMY

Captured Red prisoners in Finland, talking to American correspondents, throw some light on the army that marched casually in to conquer Finland and made such a tragic botch of it. The "army of occupation" seems to have consisted largely of men 30 to 40 years old, with little training and poor equipment. The soldiers had been told, too, that the Finns were friendly and ready for Russian annexation and there would be little or no trouble. Naturally they were amazed at the fight they got into, and helpless against an army as fine as any in Europe.

This is all the more remarkable because Russia is known to have had a large army, supposedly well trained and equipped, and foreign visitors had been much impressed with Red troops they saw parading in Moscow.

Considerable units of that vaunted Red Army seem to be fighting now on the Finnish front, and are doing better, although they are not yet breaking the stout Finnish resistance.

Outsiders naturally wonder why the Red Army was not put on that job in the first place. Stalin must have had a purpose. All Europe and Asia would like very much to know what he was saving his crack troops for, and unless the Finns are spoiling his plans, the world may soon find out.

JOBS FOR CHILDREN

"The maneuvers of parents to get their children into the movies in Hollywood are dreadful," reports a parent who has just been successfully engaged in such a maneuver for a four-year-old. "To choose the child for a single small part in a movie the director must face a line of mothers a block long. And the worst part is facing all the parents except those of the one chosen."

Maybe even that isn't the worst of it. Maybe the worst part is what such public efforts to exploit young children do to the children themselves.

And it isn't merely that the overwhelming majority of them are doomed to failure and disappointment. The worst thing might be the false ideas of life imposed on them at such an early age, and all the disillusionment and discontent brought upon them at a time when they should be living a normal life and acquiring normal ideas.

CHANGING GOVERNMENTS

Canada, politically upset over war policy, is going to hold a national election to see whether the people agree with the way Mackenzie King has been running things. They might pick a new premier for the war. The British "parliamentary system", which permits an election at any time when parliament votes a lack of confidence in the government, makes such decisions simpler and easier than they are in our rigid system.

Americans, naturally concerned with the attitude of a country so close to us in so many ways, will be much interested in seeing how that election goes. So will the British Empire and continental Europe. It will be an important revelation of what our northern neighbors really think about the war and how they want it run. Canadians, in their general attitude toward world affairs, seem to stand about half way between the United States and Great Britain.

COOL SUNLIGHT

One of the exhibits at a recent heating and ventilating show was a bronze screen, something like a Venetian blind, which is said to let sunlight into a house and keep heat out. It should be fine for offices, factories and schools.

In residences people lower shades on bright days to protect rugs and draperies from fading. If the fading power of the direct sunlight is screened out along with its heating power, housewives should be delighted to use the screen for some rooms.

We'd still want to be able to shut out brilliant light part of the time in children's rooms or sick rooms. It might take people some time, too, to believe they could have coolness with sunlight. Shade probably has a psychological effect on one's idea of temperature and comfort which will take a little experience to eliminate.

Nazi envoys in Bucharest say Rumanian oil is "a matter of life and death". Life to Germany, perhaps, and death to her neighbors.

Uncle Sam has taken a New Year's resolution; he will quit selling Japan materials to be used in killing our Chinese friends and grabbing Asia and bossing the Pacific.

Tom Dewey comes out for a two-ocean navy, and now it's up to some other candidate to call him a piker and demand a three-ocean navy.

The Russians already have lost in their little Finnish war more men than all the countries engaged in the big war.

It's sad, how many good reasons there seem to be for not helping the Finns.

INSOMNIA—SLEEPLESSNESS

It would seem that the matter of sleep and relaxation is now a subject of much thought and conversation because, during the past few years and at present, more and more individuals are finding it difficult to get "sufficient" sleep.

How can sufficient sleep be obtained? When there is pain or discomfort present, these conditions must be corrected, but what about those free from pain or discomfort?

A study of the sleep habits of fifty women who had recovered from slight mental or behavior disturbances and who did not complain of insomnia, were observed for three months in an observation hospital and reported by Dr. Louis J. Karnosh, Cleveland, in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The period of sleep varied from six and one-half to eight hours. Age, temperament, menstruation, and diet did not seem to influence the amount or degree of sleep.

On the other hand, excitement due to visits by relatives, arguments or disagreements with other persons or attendants, and holidays with the emotion or excitement which occurs at these times, were definitely to blame for breaking the regular rhythm of sleep.

This shows that it is the nervous or mental side of us that "can't take" blows or disturbances and not so much the physical disturbances that prevent us from sleeping.

Another fact found, and this same fact has often been found before, is that lack of sleep will not cause severe mental disturbances or insanity. The knowledge that lack of sleep will not cause insanity or serious body disturbances is reassuring to those who fear the terrible consequences of sleeplessness.

Further observations by nurses and physicians all agree that most of us sleep longer than we think, because sleepless hours pass so slowly. Even the "half sleep" in which we think we are really awake is of great benefit as it slows down the pulse and lowers the blood pressure and temperature.

What is the best method of bringing on sleep? A good bed, a quiet room, and muscular relaxation—keeping arms and legs in a half-bent position—are most important.

When anxiety causes tension of muscles and nerves and the cause of the anxiety cannot be removed or fought successfully, the physician may give a sleeping medicine. However, in the majority of cases the "anxious" individual does better and gets more sleep by trying to get problems or conflicts settled in some way during the day.

Annual Report Of Home for Aged Given by Secretary

The annual meeting of the board of managers of the Home for the Aged was held at the Home on Thursday afternoon, January 25, with Mrs. Fred Holcomb, the president, presiding.

The annual report of the secretary was as follows:

Madam President and Members of the Board of Managers of the Home for the Aged in Ulster County:

It is a pleasure to present this annual report of the Home for the Year 1939.

Meetings of this board have been held regularly the last Thursday of each month with the exception of July and August.

The Home as usual is full to capacity with 35 in family, one man and 34 women. There were two deaths during the year. Fifteen names have been added to the waiting list making a total of 19 waiting for admission.

The happy home-like atmosphere of the Home and the contentment and harmony among the individuals is largely due to the understanding and patience of Mr. and Mrs. Parkes. This board is deeply appreciative of their tireless efforts.

Religious services have been held regularly and we are grateful to the members of the clergy and the singers who have made these services possible.

Our thanks are also extended to the doctors who have responded so willingly to calls, to the organizations and individuals who have brought entertainment and happy hours to the old people, to the press for their cooperation in publicity and to the kind friends who from month to month, send gifts and donations.

In June the annual lawn social and card party at the home was well attended and added a nice sum to the treasury. The annual press for the year did not meet with its usual general response, probably through lack of enough advance publicity.

This board suffered a great loss in the deaths of Mrs. Virgil Van Wagoner and Mrs. A. M. Slauson. They had been active members for many years and their advice and interest in the Home have been greatly missed. These losses and changes through the years call for new members who are willing to give of their time to this institution of which we are so justly proud.

We look to the future hopefully, feeling sure that the people of the city and county will continue their support for the maintenance of the ideals which first made this Home possible.

Respectfully submitted,
 MAE E. MATTHEWS, Secretary.

Supreme Court Throws Monkey Wrench Into Decisions Differentiating Between Local and Federal Government

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 30.—The "reconstructed" Supreme Court of the United States has certainly thrown a monkey wrench again into the long line of decisions differentiating between the powers of local government and the federal government.

Although for one set of purposes, the court decides, in effect, that a failure of an employer to sit around the table with a half dozen employees in a small clothing establishment impairs and restrains or affects interstate commerce, the same court now decides that big shipments of coal from Pennsylvania to New York are not at all burdened in interstate commerce when the coal is delivered, and any city in the state of New York taxes the shipment any amount it pleases.

On the one hand, the commerce clause of the Federal Constitution is interpreted broadly for a sociological objective and, on the other hand, the same commerce clause is rendered inoperative to prevent a state or city from imposing a tariff against the incoming shipment.

The original purpose of the commerce clause was to give Congress alone the right to control shipments between the states and to prevent tariffs and barriers inside the United States. Now, according to Justice Stone and the four justices appointed by President Roosevelt, it's all right for the states or cities to erect such barriers, but according to a minority—Chief Justice Hughes and two of the older members of the court—it is a reversal of a long line of precedents on the commerce clause.

As is customary with technical decisions, both sides claim they are conforming to precedent, but the best evidence on the subject is the fact that the Court of Appeals of the State of New York held invalid the sales tax imposed on coal shipments by the city of New York. Thus the highest court in the Empire State construed the Federal Constitution as preventing the city of New York from imposing such a sales tax. The Court of Appeals read the precedents carefully as requiring the city to set aside in violation of the Federal Constitution, but a new majority in the Supreme Court has now upset that decision.

Justice Stone in the majority opinion goes farther than mere precedent into the realm of policymaking, which has so often been condemned as unwise on the part of the federal judiciary. He says: "As we have seen, the ruling of these decisions does not rest on precedent alone. It has the support of reason and of a due regard for the just balance between national and state power."

But Chief Justice Hughes questions the wisdom of allowing the court to set aside what he termed legislative policies. He says, on behalf of the minority of the court:

"Doubtless much can be said as to the desirability of a comprehensive system of taxation through the cooperation of the union and the states so as to avoid the differentiations which have been made by the commerce clause and thus to protect both state and national government by a just and general scheme for raising revenue. However important such a policy may be, it is not a matter for the court. We have the duty of maintaining the immunity of interstate commerce as contemplated by the constitution. That immunity still remains an essential buttress of the union, and a free national market, so far as it can be preserved without violence to state power over the subjects within state jurisdiction, is not less now than heretofore a vital concern of the national economy.

"The tax as here applied is open to the same objection as a tariff upon the entrance of the coal into the state of New York, or a state tax upon the privilege of doing an interstate business, and in my view cannot be sustained without abandoning principles long established and a host of precedents soundly based."

The far-reaching nature of the majority opinion can scarcely be understated. For, from now on, any city in the United States can for revenue purposes tax any articles of any kind that enters the city limits, and go soot free as being held to accountability as obstructing or interfering with or burdening interstate commerce.

It would appear that the supreme court is ready and anxious to uphold any federal law that curbs the activities of business and, at the same time, to sanction any local governmental ordinance which taxes business to death. This evidence hostility to the American economic system by the use of the judicial power is one of the striking consequences of a "reconstructed" court which is more interested in policy than in uniformity of legal interpretation.

The remedy may lie either in constitutional amendment prohibiting the states or the cities from burdening interstate commerce with their taxes, or it may lie in the inauguration of a series of reciprocal trade agreements between states so that these taxes, which are truly tariffs, may be levied more equitably.

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Muxdock, veteran marine engineer.

No. 127—SUPERIOR

It is quite probable that the builders of the steamboat "Superior" were determined to create a craft which would be superior to any that had yet been built—and for a brief period their fond desires were attained; but each year brought new ideas to the steamboating industry and it was not long before the "Superior" was that in name only. She was in service only 15 years and was then converted into a hay barge and ended her days in the obscurity of some river port—slowly rotting to pieces.

The steamboat "Superior" was built in 1830 by Smith, Comstock and Dimon at New York. She was a wooden hull vessel measuring 130 feet in length, breadth of 21 feet, and a depth of hold listed at seven feet five inches. She was rated as a vessel of 194 tons, and her engine, built by James P. Allaire of New York, was of the cross-head type with a cylinder diameter of 36 inches with a nine foot stroke.

A short time after she was completed the "Superior" was purchased by the New Haven Steamboat Company and placed in the commission in the spring of 1831. The "Superior" replaced the steamboat "United States," which had been built in 1821 and was in service for the New Haven Steamboat Company on their route between New Haven and New York city for 10 years. During the season of 1831 the "Superior" made 651 consecutive trips between New Haven and New York, and the following year a new steamboat, the "Splendid," was built for the company and placed in service as a running mate for the "Superior" on this route. Although the "Splendid" was a larger vessel than the "Superior," the two vessels comprised what was known at that time as the finest dayline in operation on Long Island Sound.

For the following three years, 1832-1835, the "Splendid" and "Superior" continued to operate together on the same route, leaving New York at 6 o'clock in the morning and New Haven at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. In 1835 a new steamboat was constructed for the New Haven route—the "New Haven"—and the smaller "Superior" was no longer of any use to the company

To Expand

Pittsburgh, Jan. 30 (AP)—With the demand for aluminum at an all-time high, the Aluminum Company of America today disclosed plans for a $30,000,000 expansion supplementing the recently completed $26,000,000 building program started in 1937. President Roy A. Hunt said the program, like the one just completed, was based on anticipated increases in markets for aluminum. Additions to the Alcoa, Tenn., rolling mill alone will step up aircraft sheet production 1,000,000 pounds a month.

Brooklyn Men Are Stranded as Car Is Crippled by Freeze

A saga (that appears to be the word these days) of the road and the wide open spaces came to light Monday night when four well dressed young men appeared at the court house and inquired for a place to spend the night. Night Jailor Lyman Ellsworth told them that a cement floor, or at the best a hard bench was all that he could offer them.

One of the quartet opined that anything would be welcomed as they had made their way on foot, mostly, all the way from Arkville, Delaware county, a distance of some 45 miles, that day.

The men said that they had come up from Brooklyn, where they are employed, Sunday, to spend the week-end at Arkville, driving a 1935 Ford car. Apparently the Ford radiator had been given a strict prohibition diet, for when they went to start it up Monday morning they discovered that the cylinder head had cracked on both sides as a result of the freezing weather.

The four travelers continued their journey back to Brooklyn this morning.

Resolutions Stir Lewis Followers

By E. E. Easterly

Columbus, O., Jan. 30 (AP)—Forty-seven resolutions advocating a third term for President Roosevelt became the most lively issue at the United Mine Workers' convention today.

Rampant speculation on what action the convention would take on the proposals, especially since they conflict with John L. Lewis' stand, preceded the resolutions committee's report.

The U. M. W. president not only predicted "agitation" for a third-term campaign, but urged his 2,400 delegates from 27 states and Canada to withhold immediate endorsement of a presidential candidate.

There were many old-timers, however, who believed Lewis, despite his denunciation of the Democratic party for "breaking faith" with labor, was "not terribly angry" with Mr. Roosevelt.

They believed their leader still had great admiration for the President and would support him for re-election if the Democrats granted the CIO chiefs' requests for more concessions to labor.

They said Lewis' third-term pessimism did not preclude a return to the Roosevelt fold. Lewis, they emphasized, qualified his prediction by saying Roosevelt would be defeated under present conditions.

The situation has confused many Lewis followers. They want to remain loyal to him, yet they say they can't disregard the President's contributions to labor.

"Why, we might not even be here at this convention were it not for the President's help to our union," one delegate exclaimed.

The confusion has been increased by the third-term endorsements by powerful CIO unions, such as the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

Fight of Unions Carried to NLRB

Detroit, Jan. 30 (AP)—The fight between CIO and AFL unions for bargaining rights in General Motors Corporation plants was carried today into a National Labor Relations Board hearing from which may come an order for the largest employees' election ever held by the board.

If elections are ordered, they will involve some 125,000 workers in G. M. plants throughout the country.

Both the United Automobile Workers (CIO) and the United Automobile Workers (AFL) have petitioned for designation as bargaining agent for employees in more than 40 G. M. plants.

Frank H. Bowen, regional NLRB director, called the unions into the hearing here today to determine whether an election should be held and if so, what the appropriate bargaining units are. In a recent election in Chrysler plants, individual plants were designated as separate units. The UAW-CIO won a majority of them.

In addition to the UAW-CIO and UAW-AFL, two AFL craft unions and two independent unions have filed petitions which are involved in the present hearing. They are the Pattern Makers League of North America (AFL), the International Union of Operating Engineers (AFL), the Mechanics Educational Society of America, and the United Aircraft Engine Workers, Inc.

Bowen said that if some forty attorneys representing the unions and corporations agree on preliminary issues, the hearing could be concluded within a few hours. Otherwise, he added, it might continue for two weeks.

Seven Degree Above

Close to zero temperatures again gripped the city during the night, and the lowest point recorded by the official city thermometer at the city hall was seven degrees above zero, as compared with a reading of eight degrees above on Monday morning.

TALKING ABOUT TOM DEWEY?

Topflight Republican leaders gathered to talk about the future at the statewide Kansas City rally of the party in Topeka. Shown together are Alf M. Landon (left), Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who was talking up Thomas E. Dewey as a presidential nominee at the gathering, and Rep. Joseph W. Martin, (right) of Massachusetts, his party's floor leader in the house. Traditionally many candidacies are launched at the Kansas Day meeting.

Republican rally. Other speakers were John D. M. Hamilton, national G. O. P. chairman, and Alf M. Landon, 1936 candidate for President, both of whom live here.

Martin's "certain friend" was President Roosevelt himself, whom Martin accused of "allowing pressing home problems to go unsolved" while putting attention on European affairs.

"Our front line is not on the Rhine," he said, "nor is it anywhere in France. It is at the farm gate and the factory door."

"We must solve the problems of agriculture so the farmer can secure his fair share of the national income" * "we must put our national finances in order" * "we must rescue the small farmer and the small employer from the dominating federal bureaucracy."

Martin said taxes on consumers had risen from 32 per cent of the national revenue to 60 per cent in 10 years and called for a "horse-and-buggy" solution — "common sense economy in the administration of public business."

THE STATE OF NEW YORK SAYS:

BLOOD RUNS COLD

By Ann Demarest

YESTERDAY: Richard says that Tim Lathrop might have given Joan the necklace which was used to strangle her. Tim tried to see Joan the night of the murder, but she didn't want to see him.

Chapter 13

Denial

"Did you murder Joan Kent?" the Sergeant asked Joan's uncle.

Mr. Kimball turned his eyes full on the officer. He made no motion and there wasn't a sound in the room. Mrs. MacDonald bent forward as though she were going to speak, then leaned back in the chair again without saying a word.

"No," said Mr. Kimball. His voice was low, but the room was so still that it sounded like an explosion. Mrs. MacDonald poked. And I fumbled in my sweater pocket for my cigarette case, but Dirck, seeing me, gave me one of his and held the match. It was the first time I'd ever heard a person asked if he'd committed a murder. It left me pretty limp.

Long turned to the girl's mother. "Is there anything you can tell me that might be of some help?" She shook her head. Christmas, she said, was the last time she'd seen Joan. She'd been home for a few days with her friend, Tim Lathrop. Except for him she knew none of Joan's friends.

"Were you on good terms with your daughter?" The Sergeant was watching her closely. She stared at him, her eyes bright with indignation, but her reply when it came was hesitating. "Yes," she said. "There was a little trouble at one time, but it would have nothing to do with this."

Everyone always said that I imagined the Sergeant got very tired of hearing it.

But his voice was patient when he said, "I'd be very much obliged if you'd tell us about it, Madam."

Mrs. MacDonald began with some reluctance. "We got along very well in the past year. Before, we never actually quarreled, but Joan was headstrong and I felt that her stepfather gave her her own way too much. A little restraining doesn't harm a girl of her age. She resented what she thought was interference on my part, so she decided to live in the city. After she left home, working gave her more of a sense of responsibility, and since then we've had no difficulty. In fact, up until Christmas she was planning to come home again to live."

"What made her change her mind?" The Sergeant leaned forward tensely as if unwilling to miss even a word.

"We didn't approve of her seeing Mr. Lathrop so much. We felt that she was wasting her time on him, but she wouldn't consider breaking off with him. And of course I, she was living at home he would have come to see her frequently."

"You believe, though, that she no longer loved him and any resentment against you?"

"I'm certain of that. We got along very well."

Mrs. MacDonald seemed such a mild, lifeless sort of person that, hearing her talk, I could never imagine her making trouble for anyone. The Sergeant seemed perfectly satisfied with her explanation.

And then she asked if it were necessary for her to stay in New York. Her husband was ill and she felt that she should be near him.

The Sergeant told her that she could go. Up to that time I couldn't see that she was hiding anything. But as she got up to leave, her eyes as they swept the room held a look of—well, fear wasn't too strong a word.

'Guilty Look'

"MAY we make arrangements for the funeral?" she asked uncertainly. "Thursday, perhaps?" The Sergeant nodded and turned away.

"Thank you," she said, and it seemed to me that she was reluctant to leave. She stopped when she reached the doorway. "May I see Joan?" Her voice had a little break in it.

The Sergeant, who was sitting at the desk now, jerked his head around. "I'm sorry, Madam. The body had to be taken to Bellevue—an autopsy, you see."

I hadn't realized that. And it was a relief to know that the room next to mine was empty now.

Mrs. MacDonald must have been shocked by it. She didn't move and there was no sign of emotion on her pale face, but when she turned to the door she stumbled blindly. Her son hurried to her side, murmured a few words, then held the door open for her. After she left he crossed the shop rapidly and went upstairs.

Dirck bent close to me. "I'm going to stick around for a while, Chris."

"I wish you would," I whispered back. "But I guess the Sergeant has changed his mind about me." He patted my hand. "You have a guilty look," he said, then jumped briskly to his feet and spoke to Sergeant Long.

"I don't want to interfere in any way, Sergeant, but I wonder if you'd mind my doing a little sleuthing on my own." He smiled as he said sleuthing.

The Sergeant raised an eyebrow. "One of these amateurs, huh? Well, go ahead." And with a wit that I thought him incapable of, he said, "Brilliant young sleuth outwits the flat-footed detective." He picked up his hat and coat and walked down the shop. "I've got to go now. Be here again before five. If Kimball or Lathrop show up, Mr. Kimball, keep them in here. Norton will keep an eye on them."

Dirck signalled me to go upstairs, so I left him with Mr. Kimball.

I felt better now that he was around. So much better, in fact, that when I got upstairs and found a cablegram poking under my door I didn't even get annoyed.

And the message: HAVING A FINE TIME WISH YOU WERE HERE LOVE TOBY DIDN'T BOTHER ME A BIT.

"That for you, Mr. Maugham," I said as I threw the cable in the fireplace and put a match to it. "Are you destroying evidence?" came a soft voice from the doorway.

I turned quickly, startled. Dirck was grinning at me.

"Yes," I said.

He stooped to pick up the envelope. I'd dropped it in the doorway.

"Chris," he said seriously, "when you destroy things, do it thoroughly. Don't taunt me with the remains. Who is cabling you?"

An old aunt, I said.

"I'd like to believe that."

I laughed shakily and lighted a cigarette. It was demoralizing, that soft blur in his voice. And suddenly Bermuda seemed very far away and Toby a strange and unfamiliar figure.

Furious At Myself

THEN he crossed the room and took me by the shoulder. "See here," he said, "you aren't letting this freak here in the house get you by any chance?"

I shook my head.

He looked at me keenly. "You're pretty pale, you know."

For some absurd reason I felt like crying. "No, really," I said, "I'm all right."

He sounded queerer than I felt.

"Are you sure?" he said gently.

I was furious at myself. I felt like a child who has fallen down and hurt herself, but didn't cry until she saw her mother. All that day I'd been crying, and the day crowded into my mind—waking to hear Sarah screaming; that terrible reflection of Joan Kent in her bright dressing gown; Mr. Kimball's white face as he stood in the hall; Sergeant Long's hammering questions; the tense faces of Richard MacDonald and his mother.

I shivered and pressed my face against Dirck's shoulder, and for a moment or two I stood there with Dirck's strong hand on my shoulder, until I felt a warm, steady pressure.

"I don't usually spill over like this, Mr. Kimball."

"You may cry on my shoulder any time you like," he said in a matter-of-fact voice. "How have you been lately, anyway?" He sat down in the wing chair by the fireplace.

"Fine, thank you," was the most brilliant answer I could manage. I was furious that he made me feel so self-conscious.

He looked at me, and that calm blue gaze of his seemed to penetrate every crack in my armor.

"I'm glad you called me," he said finally. "I was wondering whether you'd returned from Paris."

"I got in two weeks ago."

"Except for the pallor, and that's not unbecoming, you're looking keen."

"So are you."

Well, I kept up a bright conversation like that for about five minutes and then he looked at me and we both laughed, and Dirck drew his chair closer to mine.

"You know you scared me to death in Paris," he admitted.

"How?"

"Well, that day I took you to tea everyone that passed the table spoke to you. And Toby Maugham was supposed to be staying in Paris just because you were there. You were in a jam, weren't you? I felt like the flying tail to the kite."

"Jealous?"

He shook his head. "I like my women domestic."

I laughed. "I'm no more domestic than I ever was."

"No, as usual you're stirring up the dust. This is a nice mess you've moved yourself into."

I leaned back in the chair lazily. "I'm glad you're here. The Sergeant had me intimidated this afternoon."

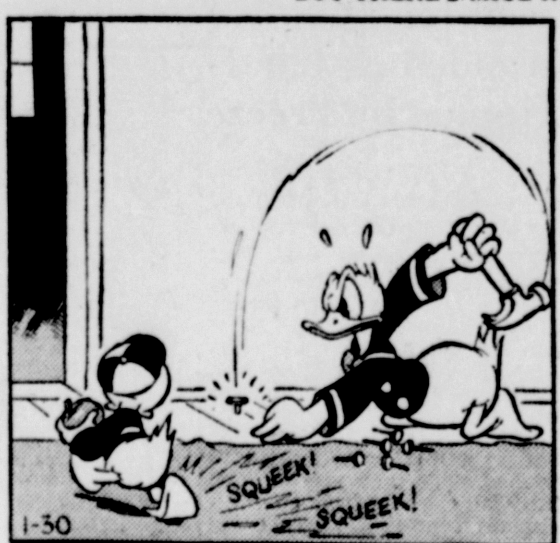

Dirck took out his pipe and lighted it. "I don't think he'll arrest you. There are too many others on his mind. And do you know, it's interesting down here. I've just taken a quick look over that shop of Kimball's. He's got beautiful things there, and some very rare books. It's odd to find a shop like this in such a neighborhood. I should think there'd be very little demand for such things down here."

MIDWINTER NIGHT'S DREAM!

OFFICE CAT

By Junius

The thing that kills most beautiful theories is trying them out.

Remember that words often have a variety of meanings:

A school teacher tells about a little boy whose coat was so difficult to fasten that she went to his assistance. As she tugged at the hook, she said:

Teacher—Did your mother hook this coat for you?

Little Boy—No. She bought it.

There are plenty of bright spots in the world if we wish to look for them instead of for the dark ones.

Boy—Mother, can I go out and play ball?

Mother—Why, I don't even know how to play ball?

Boy—Aw, shucks, that's what a fellow gets for having a woman for a mother.

Many of us who crack jokes about Scotch thrift should be endeavoring to imitate it.

Billy—Uncle Mike, you are not married, are you?

Uncle Mike—No, son.

Billy—Then who tells you what you ought not to do?

We learn more by listening than talking, provided we choose wisely those to whom we listen.

Gray—Mr. Haythe, is a good friend of mine. Why, I remember during the worst part of the depression, he showed confidence in me when the clouds were dark and threatening.

Harold—In what way?

Gray—He lent me his umbrella.

The college student had failed to pass a very important examination. Wishing to break the news gently to his parents, he sent the following wire to his elder brother:

"Failed to pass exam. Prepare father. The brother: "Father prepared. Prepare yourself."

What is a bill collector for? Husband—You say the bill collector is downstairs?

Wife—Yes.

Husband—Well, tell him to take that pile on my desk.

Mandy—Don't you all know it's wrong to believe in ghosts?

Marcellus—Ah, don't believe in 'em. Ah wouldn't trust a ghost as far as ah can see him.

He always acts so uppity, and frowns on those who're poor. In this place where he's always lived, his standing is secure. He's arrogant—a perfect snob. Because someone, before him, worked hard and left him lots of wealth, he thinks all should adore him.

He's never done one thing to earn a person's admiration; And if he lives where merit counts, he'd hold a lowly station.

Though he's a whale in his wee pool. Somehow I have the notion, In any other spot, he'd be a small fish—in an ocean!

—L. Myers.

A Boy Scout was being asked questions on the points of the compass—north, south, east and west.

Scoutmaster—Now, if you stand facing the rising sun, the north is on your left hand, the south to the right of you. What would be behind you?

Boy Scout—My knapsack, sir.

We do not know what the doctors say about it, but we are quite sure that women have better eyesight than men. A man cannot see a mud-ball two feet away from his nose, but a woman can see a speck of dust a half mile away.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Tough Work

Middletown, N. Y.—A 20,000-gallon railroad water tank froze, and workmen, attempting to thaw it, accidentally set fire to the supporting wooden structure.

Firemen were called, but found the hydrant frozen. By that time they thawed it, they found the hose nozzles frozen. By the time the nozzles were thawed, the hose had frozen.

Then a locomotive drew up, and the crew threw hot water from the boiler on to the fire and left. The fire broke out again. Firemen got a new hose and extinguished the blaze.

The water tank never did get thawed.

Bull's Eye, Almost

Detroit—When word of this gets around, Frank Reddick probably won't be bothered with prowlers.

He was awakened by the sound of someone trying to enter his bedroom window. He grabbed an ax, crept to the window and gave a tremendous chop.

The prowler fled. Reddick turned on the light and found the intruder's hat neatly pinned to the window ledge by the ax.

All Aboard

St. Joseph, Mo.—Harry Griffith may take a train ride from Muscotah, Kas., to Atchison, Kas., if a ticket he found in his late uncle's papers is still good.

The ticket, dated September 12, 1887, has no time limit. He's sending it to the Missouri Pacific railroad office at St. Louis to find out whether it's valid.

Name Plate

Cashion, Wis.—Ole Lee has his name on his automobile license plates upside down. For the third successive year, he has asked the state to give him license number 337-370 which, inverted, spells his name.

Automatic Alarm

Dumont, Iowa—Members of the Albert Lohting family lay claim to an automatic fire alarm. Shortly after midnight, they heard a car honking outside. Investigation showed their auto was on fire. A short circuit, caused by the flames, had turned on the horn. Only a portion of the car was damaged by the blaze.

Lawyer Wins Fight To Break Will

District Attorney N. LeVan Haver won a notable victory in a will contest case which occupied the time of the court and jury in Columbia county for five days last week, during which some 30 witnesses were sworn and considerable expert testimony was presented.

The case involved the will of Annie S. Fingar, formerly of West Taghkanic, Columbia county, who was in her 82nd year when she died, July, 1939. The will was executed in December, 1934, and was drawn by Robert H. Haver, surrogate of Columbia county, who was named executor.

Because of this fact trial was had before Judge Bailey, surrogate of Otsego county, and a jury. Mr. Haver appeared for a nephew and niece of Mrs. Fingar, Zella Sheldon of West Taghkanic and her brother, Hoyt Sheldon of California. The two are children of Mrs. Fingar's deceased son, the Rev. Harry Sheldon.

Under Mrs. Fingar's will she left to receive $500 each. The remainder of the estate, upwards of $10,000 being involved, was left among the 11 nephews and nieces of Mrs. Fingar and her deceased husband, Elias Fingar.

Breaking of the will, validity of which was contested by Attorney Haver on the ground that it was not of sound mind when she made and executed the will, would result in the estate going to the nephew and niece represented by Mr. Haver, as the only surviving blood relations.

At the conclusion of the long trial the jury brought in a verdict to the effect that the will was not of sound mind at the time it was made. In effect this decision was to the effect that the will was void. Mr. Haver was William Haver of Hudson, who appeared for Surrogate Bailey; Harold Wilson of Hudson, who represented some of Elias Fingar's nephews and nieces, and former county court Justice Ellis J. Wilson, trial counsel for propounder of the will.

The case attracted much attention during the five days it was in progress, particularly on the part of other attorneys.

Accused for Driving While Intoxicated

An action against Earl Miller of Armonk, held on a charge of driving while intoxicated, was scheduled for a hearing before Justice Philip Slutsky at Ellenville today.

Sergeant John Hopkins and Officer William Reynolds of Ellenville substation, arrested Miller following an accident about 30 Saturday afternoon, when Miller, driving his Buick coupe, crashed into and knocked down a large scale near the Hornsack Brothers store in Nanapanoch. Arraigned before Justice Slutsky, Miller pleaded not guilty and a case was set down for a hearing today.

To Make Study
Mexico City, Jan. 30 (AP)—A group of Mexican officials have been invited to study Japan's industrial and economic life as a result of the Japanese government, it was learned here today.

To Open This Evening

Old buildings along central Broadway are being replaced gradually by structures of modern design. One of the latest improvements of this business section of the city is that represented in the Empire Wine and Liquor Store, which has its grand opening scheduled for 6 o'clock this evening. Irving Wilpan, manager, and Morris Reuben will conduct the business. The building was designed by Albert E. Milliken, local architect.

Finns Sweep Into Soviet Land; Nazis Renew Air Attack

by Hitler was the only special observance scheduled for today.

New German Raids
London, Jan. 30 (AP)—A new wave of German air raiders struck at British shipping today for the second consecutive day of suddenly intensified aerial warfare between Britain and Germany.

Britain announced one raider had been shot down as distress signals from vessels off the east coast told briefly of the renewed assaults. Nazi scouting planes were chased away from shore by British fighters.

Additional reports from shipping disclosed the extent of yesterday's widespread raids on at least 14 larger vessels and numerous trawlers.

Two men were killed, one each on the trawler Rigoletto and Durant, by machine-gunning from a low-flying raider. The 1,487-ton British steamer Eston was missing in the North Sea with a crew of 18 men.

All of yesterday's victims were British except the Latvian steamer Tautmala, aboard which seven men were killed by a German bomb and machine-gun attack.

Down 21 Planes
Helsinki, Jan. 30 (AP)—The Finnish high command announced today that Finnish planes and anti-aircraft batteries downed 21 Russian planes during yesterday's widespread raids over southern Finland.

It was declared that Finnish planes had bombed "a certain harbor and vessels lying there"—and informed circles here assumed that this meant the Russian naval base at Kronstadt near Leningrad.

The Finnish command said only one Finnish plane was lost.

(The Russian high command insisted, however, that seven Finnish planes had been downed yesterday.)

nish planes had been downed yesterday.)

A high command communique, describing increased sea and land fighting as well as air activity, estimated 200 Russian planes took part in the raids in which "over 30 civilians were killed and about 50 wounded."

The Finns said their air force struck at Russia by bombing "an enemy motor lorry column, troop quarters and certain railway stations."

Northeast of Lake Ladoga, where Finnish-Russian fighting has been particularly intense for the past week, the Finns declared the Russians had attempted a few attacks but were repulsed with "heavy casualties."

Supporting this action, naval forces attacked the Finnish fort at Mantsi, on a Lake Ladoga island flanking the northeast front. The Finns said this blow was fended off.

The Mantsi attack was believed to have been an attempt to cover reinforcements being brought to the northeast front to assist badly battered Soviet divisions.

Unofficial reports averred that Red leaders were continuing unsuccessfully an attempt to reorganize the Lake Ladoga offensive.

In yesterday's raids the communique said a hospital was bombed and a church in the village of Kuhnmo was bombed several times.

Auto Thief Serves Term Under Car Owner's Name
TURLOCK, CALIF.—C. G. Peterson, rancher, has his car back after it was stolen and not recovered for seven months, but he was glad he did not acquire the record of the temporary illegal owner.

Peterson's name—but not himself—served a 75-day term in Alameda county jail in Oakland on a drunken driving charge.

Oakland officers arrested the auto thief. He presented Peterson's operator's license—which he had found in the car—and was jailed and sentenced in Peterson's name.

The car was impounded in a garage and kept there until police checked and found it had been stolen.

Industrials and Rails Again Drop

Dealings on the Stock Exchange Monday followed about the same pattern that has been true of late, with low volume, 490,000 shares, some issues showing strength and the general list closing irregularly lower.

Closing prices, measured by the Dow-Jones averages, below the best levels of the day, industrials and rails showed declines, the former closing at 146.26, off .25 point for the day and rails dropping .06, to 30.69. The utilities managed to show a slight gain, .07 point, to close at 24.95.

Among stocks showing strength for the day were Loft, Sears-Roebuck and American Can. Motors and steels held in a narrow range.

Commodities made an unsatisfactory showing, the Dow-Jones index showing a loss for the fourth consecutive day and being off 1.10 points, largest loss for a single day since October 3, closing at 58.20, lowest point since December 4. With more encouraging weather news a price factor wheat futures declined sharply, being off 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 cents a bushel at Chicago. May wheat closing at 96 1/2 cents a bushel, lowest point since the middle of December. Following sharp breaks abroad cotton was depressed and futures closed off 13 to 17 points. Silk was easier and February No. 1 sold as low as $2.85 a pound, about $1.60 below the high price of December, $4.50, the highest in some ten years.

Bond market was the dullist since last August and the close was irregular with gains and losses about evenly divided.

Abroad the Paris market was irregular, with London and Amsterdam firm.

Business news generally was mixed. Registering the third consecutive drop since the pick-up following the holidays, steel operations for this week are scheduled at 77.3 per cent of capacity, off 4.9 point from last week. On the other hand car loadings, judging from the first roads to report, gained more than seasonally last week. Erie reports total of 24,848 cars, against 23,065 the preceding week and 22,998 a year ago.

An order for 84 buses received this month by Twin Coach raised its backlog to $3,250,000, a record high.

A 10 to 15 per cent increase in low bids submitted to the government for tires to be delivered to the government beginning April 1 is viewed by Akron circles as an indication that there will be a general advance in tire prices in the near future.

Aluminum Co. of America last year had net estimated at $35,000,000, more than double the $15,563,145 made in 1938. Result of record foreign and domestic sales.

General Cigar reports net of $879,248, or $1.12 a share compared with net in 1938 of $1,207,181, or $1.81 a share. Safeway Stores net of $6,268,360 is sharply ahead of 1938, when $4,206,781 was earned.

J. I. Case had earnings of $352,343 in year ended October 31 against net of $2,422,372, or $8.89 a share in 1938.

New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—Backsliding trends prevailed in the stock market today after early attempts to promote a rally proved futile.

Losses, near the final hour, ranged from fractions to around a point for leaders. There were a few isolated drops of as much as 4 or so on turnovers. Dealings were light throughout. Transfers were at the rate of approximately 500,000 shares.

Traders could find little in the news to inspire buying and most continued to keep commitments at a minimum.

Sagging tendencies in business, combined with clouds over politics, Congress and the European wars were still seen as the principal speculative handicaps.

Foreign markets lagged and bonds and commodities were mixed.

Stocks inclined to give ground included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Sears-Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, J. I. Case, American Telephone, Westinghouse, Air Reduction, General Electric and American Smelting.

Rails, utilities and oils kept to a fairly steady course.

The curb was spotty. Higher at one time were Aluminum of America, American Gas, Aviation and Transportation and Lake Shore.

Hitler Says England Has Waged Most of the Wars

Berlin, Jan. 30 (AP) (Via Radio)

—Adolf Hitler went to the German people tonight on this, the seventh anniversary of his chancellorship, for his first nationwide address since November 8 when he missed probable death by 11 minutes in the Munich beer hall bombing.

The Fuehrer spoke in the Berlin sports palace.

He was introduced amid thunderous "heils" by Paul Joseph Goebbels, the propaganda minister, as "the one voice of Germany."

"On this January 30, it is the sign of the union of the German nation," said Goebbels, "and our thanks will not be empty words but battle."

Hitler's first remark, as unofficially translated into English, was a reference to his seven years at the head of the Reich and a declaration that they had "seemed longer than many decades of the past."

"This is a great historic event," Hitler went on.

"We have much today about democratic ideals. . . . England has waged most of the wars of this world. . . . A new Europe is supposed to arise and there should be general disarmament and this disarmament is then supposed to begin the economic prosperity of Europe, especially free trade."

"Under this free trade civilization is to flourish," he went on still apparently referring sarcastically to Britain's stated "peace objectives."

"In one word," he said sarcastically, "the golden age is to begin. . . . This golden age has been skipped several times."

"All this was promised in 1918—the new justice and so forth. Alas, ready at that time there was a program of disarmament."

There were great jeering roars as he said this. "The future," he said, "will be a great victory."

"It was expected that as a result of that disarmament in 1919 there would be universal prosperity."

"In not one single case did they (the Allies) ask the nations of Europe in the reorganization what their own wishes were."

"What had been formed through the centuries probably had been the better. Without any consideration for the self determination of peoples, Europe was chopped to pieces."

"They did not disarm, but they continued to arm. The disarmed people were not in a position to defend themselves. The economic depression hit not only the defeated but also the victors."

"Even religion stepped into the background and no Englishmen in the 15 years before I came to power had any recollection of religion."

"And this treaty of Versailles (after the World War) was supported by the League of Nations—which was not a league of free nations. But they tried to force us to live up to the dictates of the treaty."

"This democratic Germany (of the post war period) was the product of the allies—and how they have maltreated it!"

"Those were years of economic disintegration and enslavement. In all the years Germany hoped and begged and protested in vain. But they (allies) thought there were too many millions of Germans in this world. They were unconcerned about the sufferings of our agriculture and our industry."

"When all the pleading remained in vain, the National Socialist party arose."

"When you no longer can beg and hope and protest, then something has to be done."

"Again the cheers thundered. "Some placed their hopes on the democratic nations, but finally we realized we could only do it through our own strength."

"This new rise of Germany did not in any way threaten England. A nation must help itself. They have to rely on their own efficiency and intelligence."

"The program: Greeting song by the members Song—"The Quilting Party" . . . Members Anna Kukuk Reading—"Breakfast habits changing" . . . Mrs. R. Everett Reading—"From Wally's Wagon" . . . Mrs. Margaret Gaddis History of song—"When You and I Were Young Maggie" read by Mrs. M. Brink Reading—"Now Is the Time" . . . James Gaddis Reading—"How to Keep Pointsettias" . . . Mrs. Linda Denis Contest—Questions from "Information Please" Refreshments were served.

The February committee follows: Mr. and Mrs. Myron Boice, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund R. Bower, Mr. and Mrs. Pratt Boice, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Boice, Miss Olive Boice, Lewis Boice and Miss Alida Brewer. The program, in charge of the lecturer, will be on "Dogs."

Mrs. Lawton Dies in Florida

The host of friends of Mrs. William Lawton will be shocked to learn of her death on Monday afternoon, January 29, at Sarasota, Fla., where she and Mr. Lawton were spending the winter at their winter home there. Mrs. Lawton, who had been ill for some time, died of pneumonia. The funeral service was held in Sarasota this afternoon and the interment in Wiltwyck Cemetery, this city, will occur at a later date.

Born in the home of her mother's ancestors, the stone house on Crown street, the daughter of the late Judge Augustus Schoonmaker, first inter-state commerce commissioner, and Mrs. Schoonmaker, Mrs. Lawton is survived by her husband, William Lawton, of this city, one sister, Mrs. Harry Delisser, of Brooklyn, and several nieces and nephews.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawton's delightful hospitality drew to the charming Colonial home men and women of note from all parts of the country as well as abroad.

Receiving her advanced education at a private school in Newburgh Mrs. Lawton readily found a place awaiting her in the high social life in Washington, and for some time Judge and Mrs. Schoonmaker and daughters made their home in the capital city of Washington, where Mrs. Lawton found a youthful life of social charm.

Later her marriage to William Lawton of this city took place at the Fair Street Reformed Church. Wherever she went Mrs. Lawton won the love as well as the admiration of a host of friends to whom she was devoted.

One of the founders of the former Monday Club, Mrs. Lawton was its president for some time, and with that club's affiliation with the Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Lawton broadened her loyal and active interest to include its good work in Kingston.

With the creation of the Kingston Public Library, for which she worked arduously, Mrs. Lawton was made vice president, an office which together with that of trustee, she held at the time of her death.

Mrs. Lawton's patriotism found vent in large measure in her activities in connection with Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., of which she was a trustee, the third Regent from 1897 to 1899 and more recently the chairman of the Old Stone House Committee of the D. A. R.

With her deep love and profound knowledge of flowers, Mrs. Lawton was one of the first members of the Ulster Garden Club and also always actively supported the Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross, the Tuberculosis Committee work and the Y. W. C. A. work.

E. S. Harkness Dead
New York, Jan. 30 (AP)—Edward S. Harkness, 66, who never made a public speech or gave a newspaper interview, although he donated $100,000,000 to education and health, died last night of a pneumonia infection. The fortune of Harkness, a native of Cleveland, O., stemmed from that of his father, Stephen V. Harkness, whose early partnership with John D. Rockefeller, Sr., in founding Standard Oil brought millions to the family. He was shy, and many of his philanthropies were kept in deepest secrecy. He had been ill only a few weeks. At his bedside was his widow, only close survivor. The couple had no children.

K.B.A. Striving for Record In City Tournament Entries

Officials of the Kingston Bowling Association will launch a drive for a new city tournament entry record during the month of February. The tournament opens on March 15 at the Y. M. C. A. alleys.

Official sanction of the fourth annual city tournament has been sent through by the national headquarters, and the local group is now receiving entries.

With a larger territory to work with, the K. B. A. anticipates an entry of at least 50 teams in the five-man event. The previous high was 36 last year.

Newcomers to the Kingston association are the San-Mar Recreation League of Saugerties, the Upper Hudson League and the Central Recreation League. Ellenville also has an increased membership.

Tournament Rules

Secretary Tiano of the local association today calls to the attention of the captains the rules governing the competition.

The entry fee is $1.10 per event. A bowler can roll with as many teams as he is a registered member of in some league during the regular season. Only one entry will be permitted in singles and doubles.

Team averages of 875 or more constitute Class A. Class A singles averages start at 175, while 350 is a Class A team average.

Class C will be averages of 775 for five-man, 310 doubles and 155 singles. Class B, of course, will be between these two classifications.

In computing any averages, whether singles, doubles or five man, a bowler's composite average must be used.

All star teams can be organized at the discretion of the tournament committee and the three-man teams of the Y. M. C. A. Mercantile can merge to form five-man squads.

Entries will definitely close at midnight March 1. President Keresman points out that positively no entries will be accepted after the original deadline. Because the deadline was extended twice but the tournament committee has no intention of repeating this season.

Entries can be mailed or sent to Wilson C. Ingalls, city association treasurer, at 679 Broadway. Entries can be handed to Mr. Ingalls and Bouton, 503 Wilbur avenue, any week day between the hours of 12 and 1. Total entry fee must accompany the entry blanks and positively no entry will be accepted unless accompanied by the required fee.

Kerhonkson High Tops Marlborough

Kerhonkson High School's traveling quintet won its sixth game of the season and its fifth DUSO League victory last week when it downed a strong Marlborough High School team on the road by a 21-18 count.

Loss snapped a five game winning streak and dimmed Marlborough's championship hopes.

Kerhonkson opened the scoring with a long sideline shot by Schoneker, but Cutrone soon knotted the score for Marlborough on a lay-up. From this point until the final whistle the game was fast and furious, contested with a packed line of supporters for both teams at a constant uproar.

At the end of each of the first three quarters the winners led by 4, 9-7 and 14-13. With six minutes to go in the final quarter Marlborough took a 15-14 lead which was soon erased on three baskets by Poppo and S. Decker. In a preliminary game the Marlborough jayvees downed the visiting juniors by 29-17.

Postmasters to Retire
Washington, Jan. 30 (P)—About 1,800 of the nation's oldest postmasters, including Miss Mollie Stewart of Oxford, Md., and 98-year-old Alphonse Gullet of Chataigner, La., will retire this week. Miss Stewart has been in charge of the Oxford postoffice since March 9, 1877, when President Hayes appointed her. Gullet, a native of France and once a schoolmate of the late Georges Clemenceau, has been postmaster at Chataigner since 1904, but has been connected with the postoffice in some capacity for 60 years.

Canfield Outcues Marchuk 100 to 91

John Canfield defeated Mike Marchuk in their city tournament match at the Kaslich Academy last night. The final score after a game of many innings was 100 to 91 with high runs conspicuous by their absence. Canfield ran 15 for his high, and Marchuk could get only 13 as his best.

Redeemers, Comforters and Irish Quintets Are Victors

Playing with four men in the Church Basketball League last night, the Redeemers routed the Clinton Avenue Methodists 63-20.

In the other games St. Mary's pounded out a 43-26 verdict over the First Dutch quintet and Comforters took over the Port Ewen basketballers 37-17.

Against the Clintons, who were out in full, Al Bruce and Charlie Bock cut the cords for 49 of the Redeemers' points and with them on their spree there was no stopping the downtown churchmen.

For the Irish in their victory over the First Dutch, it was Hank Krum, Tommy Weems and Andy Murphy who did the best shooting to enable their club to tighten its hold on first place in the league.

In the Comforter Port-Ewen clash, high scoring honors went to Canfield and Van Buren with eight points each.

Jack Sutherland, Pitt Coach, To Pilot Brooklyn Dodgers

Pittsburgh, Jan. 30 (P)—Jack Sutherland is turning pro at the risk of one of the best football coaching records in the business.

The 50-year-old Scot who directed Pitt grid football for 15 years has accepted a three-year contract to pilot the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Professional League.

"I never coached a loser and I hope to continue that record," declared the bachelor dental instructor long famous as a maker of all-Americans.

"If I did not believe I could make a go of pro football I certainly would not have assumed my new position. No one likes to win any more than I do, and I will try my utmost to give Brooklyn fans a winner."

And that comes from an affable fellow who thinks "football has been good to me" what with an enviable record of 144 victories, 14 ties and only 28 defeats in 20 years. He coached five years at Lafayette before going to Pitt.

Spirits writers sighed in relief with announcement yesterday of Sutherland's hiring by Dodger Owner Dan Topping. Ever since Jack quit at Pitt in last spring's athletic upheaval they've been running down rumors connecting him with every coaching vacancy.

Dr. John Bain Sutherland, as he's listed on a 1918 Pitt diploma, left his alma mater because he felt Chancellor John G. Bowman's athletic code failed to provide for the caliber of teams on Panther schedules.

His offer expressed opposition to paid grid performers caused surprise among some fans by acceptance of the Brooklyn job but the pro world had only praise for the long-reported deal.

"Take careful aim at the center of the cue ball. Your bridge hand should be about seven inches from the cue ball. Make a firm bridge on the bed of the table, hold the cue firmly at the balance and level with the table.

Take careful aim at the center of the cue ball. "warming up" with several preliminary strokes. Strike the cue ball with a very light stroke, then increase the force of the stroke, playing harder and harder until you are able to pocket all fifteen balls, stroking as hard as you can.

At all times be mindful of your stance, grip, bridge, cueing and follow through — and above all, leave your cue in the line of aim during the follow through.

Brooklyn reportedly gave Jack $12,000 along with a bonus arrangement. The figure is just $1,000 under what Pitt is said to have paid him.

London. However, under extreme conditions they fail to lose their frigidity over the ocean and carry violent icy storms across England and France and as far south as northern Italy.

In much the same way Canada and the United States get most of their snow and freezing weather from air sucked in through the giant funnel of the Mackenzie river basin in northern Canada, just east of the Canadian Rockies. The weather of the two continents frequently balances as the Arctic air masses sweep southward.

"These storms over North America seem to break out of the Mackenzie basin as the pressure of air increases throughout that area," Weightman explained. "Then they sweep southward, sometimes as far as Alabama and Mississippi, as they did in recent weeks."

At times small "chunks" of air sweeping across the continent cut off portions of the larger air masses from the north and create small "families" of low pressure areas which cause storms in spotted areas.

The recent extreme cold which has aided Finland in its defense against Russian invasion is probably due to northeast wind sweeping down from the Arctic, Weightman said.

The true conditions prevailing over the northern half of Europe are not known with customary accuracy, the weather bureau forecasters added, because none of the warring countries is sending the cooperative weather reports which are exchanged in peacetime.

Judge Fowler Is Elected Head of Public Health

At the annual meeting of the Ulster County Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health, held at the office, 74 John street, Monday night, Judge Joseph M. Fowler was re-elected president of the committee. This makes the 31st time that Judge Fowler has been named to head the work here. Other officers named are: Mrs. Clara Norton Reed, vice-president; H. Van Wyck Darrow, treasurer; Miss Katherine M. Murphy, secretary.

Dr. Hollis Ingraham, district state health officer, was named ex-officio of the board of directors and three new members of the board were named: Edward M. Huben of Rosendale, the Rev. John P. McCaffrey of Kingston and Mrs. Theodore Oxholm of Esopus. Other directors are: Mrs. Marion Bullard, Woodstock; the Rev. Arthur G. Carroll, Sidney K. Clapp, Edward Coykendall, Philip Elting, Everett Fessenden, Harry S. Ensign, Kingston; Dr. Bertram W. Gifford, Saugerties; Mrs. Dorothy V. Hoemer, Ellenville; Dr. Frederic Holcomb, Marysville; the Rev. William H. Kennedy, James F. Loughran, Sam N. Mann, Dr. Elizabeth M. Parsons, Robert L. Sisson, Charles Snyder, Dr. Frederick Voss and Ira V. D. Warren, Kingston.

Treasurer Darrow reported that a total of $7,806.79 had been received to date from the sale of 1939 Christmas seals. This exceeds 1938 receipts from this source by around $100, although 1938 was a record up to that time. Mr. Darrow reported also that operating expenses, exclusive of improvements, at Camp Happyland, amounted to $1,567.87 for the year 1939.

Miss Murphy, efficient executive secretary of the organization, gave a comprehensive report of the work done during the past year. Miss Murphy emphasized that although in 30 years of health service in Ulster county the death rate from tuberculosis has decreased from about 194 to 100,000 to 40 per 100,000. "We still face the fact that more people die of tuberculosis than from any other disease."

"An occasion to be remembered for a long time," was Miss Murphy's description of the open dinner meeting of the committee, commemorating 30 years of organized work, held at the Governor Clinton Hotel May 23, 1939. Honored on this occasion were Mrs. Clara Norton Reed and Judge Fowler, who had served the organization as president for 30 years.

Regarding nursing service during the year, Miss Murphy said that the committee nurse assisted at 112 health clinics held at the Ulster County TB Hospital, where 1,558 patients were examined with X-rays, 43 positive cases being admitted to the hospital. The nurse made 530 visits to patients and families and also had carried out the tuberculin testing program at high schools and at the New Paltz Normal School.

Under the supervision of James F. Loughran, chairman of the camp, many necessary improvements had been made at Camp Happyland during the year. A group of boys had occupied the camp until July 30, and 46 girls came to the camp on August 3, as guests of the committee.

Miss Murphy reported that the committee had contributed $100 toward the fund for moving pictures for patients at the TB Hospital and also had purchased outfitting flannel for pajamas for indigent patients.

The committee sponsored a joint meeting at the high school February 1, National Social Hygiene Day, when Dr. Hollis Ingraham and Dr. J. Spottiswood Taylor gave illustrated talks before more than 200 persons. The committee also supplied speakers for similar meetings throughout the county. Preparations are now under way for a similar observance of the day on February 1 this year.

Reference was made to the need for public health nurses, a subject which has been discussed. She said that the Ulster County Medical Society committee had asked the board of supervisors for an appropriation of county funds to carry on this work, but that no action had been taken. Miss Murphy said that "the great need for this work has been clearly demonstrated and considerable public sentiment already has been aroused in many sections."

Miss Murphy told how proceeds from sale of Christmas Seals were distributed. She said that five per cent of the money was forwarded to the National Tuberculosis Association, 12 per cent went to the state committee on tuberculosis and public health, while the remaining 83 per cent is used by the local committee to carry on its program of health work.

Farm Prices Are Now at New Level

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—Administration farm officials, confronted by the possibility that congress may not appropriate funds for parity payments for 1941, were heartened today by the disclosure that farm prices had started the new year at the highest level in two years.

The agricultural department said that the index of farm prices advanced three points between mid-December and mid-January to reach 99 per cent of the 1910-14 level.

This index was five points higher than a year earlier and the highest since mid-January, 1938. Nearly all groups of commodities participated in the advance.

While their father looked for work and police tried to locate their mother, these three children found their first real warmth and food in 24 hours at the Philadelphia city welfare shelter. Their father, Joseph Fisher, brought them to the shelter, saying his wife, Elsie, had deserted them and there was no heat and little to eat at home.

President Seeks Funds for Construction of Hospitals

Washington, Jan. 30 (AP)—President Roosevelt asked Congress today to approve a $7,500,000 to $10,000,000 experimental program for federal construction of approximately 50 hospitals in areas needing such facilities but unable to pay for them.

Setting forth the request in a "birthday message"—this being his 58th birthday—Mr. Roosevelt said of his recommendation: "I am confident that even this limited undertaking will bring substantial returns in the saving of lives, rehabilitation of workers, and increased health and vigor of the people."

The plan, he declared, does not constitute a renewal of any past federal works program using the "grants-in-aid" method of financing. "The areas which I have in mind," he explained, "are areas so poor that they cannot raise their share of the cost of building and equipping a hospital."

The $7,500,000 to $10,000,000 appropriation which the President asked would be made to the Public Health Service which, with the advice of an advisory council of medical and scientific authorities, would select locations for the hospitals and plan "good standards" of operation.

The federal works agency would plan and execute the construction. Title to the institutions would be held by the federal government, but operation would be a local financial responsibility.

The program would be put into effect during the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1940. The hospitals would be of simple construction, equipped with at least 100 beds, and cost between $150,000 and $200,000 each.

The Chief Executive sent his message only to the House, the Senate being in recess. White House officials said he was "very sentimental" about the proposal since it was being advanced on his birthday.

"This is not an ambitious project," Mr. Roosevelt said. "This principle should not be extended to government gifts to communities which are financially able to build their own hospitals. It is an experiment in the sense that the nation will gain much experience by undertaking such a project."

"At the very least it will save lives and improve health in those parts of the nation which need this most and can afford it least."

The plan was described by administration officials as a stop-gap pending further studies by Congress and by an interdepartmental committee on a permanent program of broader scope, to coordinate health and welfare activities.

A bill by Senator Wagner (D., N. Y.), now before the Senate committee, would provide ultimately between $850,000,000 and $1,000,000,000 for health activities. It calls for state matching on a variable basis of federal grants.

Some time ago, the President described the Wagner bill as being too costly and as discriminatory against poor communities because of its matching requirement.

Referring to the congressional study, the President said today that "it is my hope that such study will be continued actively during the present session, looking toward constructive action at the next."

"In order that at least a beginning may be made I now propose for the consideration of the Congress a program for the construction of small hospitals in needy areas of the country, especially in rural areas, not now provided with them," he said. "Hospitals are essential to physicians in giving modern medical service to the people. In many areas, present hospital facilities are almost nonexistent. The most elementary health needs are not being met."

Snow Falls Along Western Front

Paris, Jan. 30 (AP)—Renewed snowfall along the western front today again clamped a wintry hand on military activities.

French artillery, however, was active in the Vosges mountains and along the Rhine, military sources said, shelling German labor battalions which apparently were strengthening the Siegfried line fortifications.

Characterizing Adolf Hitler as a destroyer and Germans as slaves, Premier Daladier warned the French nation in a radio broadcast last night that total war with Germany "cannot be long in breaking."

His address, on the eve of the seventh anniversary of Hitler's rise to power in Germany, was "one of the most terrible indictments of any man ever uttered," said the continental edition of the London Daily Mail.

Daladier said, "Germany is seeking to establish a domination of the world which is absolutely different from all that history has known so far."

"Hitler the conqueror does not deal with nations; he has reduced to submission—he destroys them."

The premier declared, "the worker and peasant of Germany are slaves of their Nazi masters. Both worker and peasant of Bohemia and Poland have become in turn the slaves of these slaves."

"How can the world do otherwise than shudder before this initial realization of insane dreams?" Daladier followed this with an appeal "in candid and even brutal" tones, to the French behind the lines for "equality of sacrifices and equality of labor" to assure the triumph of Britain and France. "It is essential," he said, "that those of the interior succeed in making themselves respected by those at the front through work, renunciation and discipline."

It would be "criminal," he said, to underestimate Germany's formidable military strength, and he urged increased arms production. "We will win, but we must carry off also a victory far exceeding an armed victory."

Disseminators of German or Russian propaganda will be dealt with mercilessly, Daladier promised.

The Communist party was dissolved in France, he said, because "the men of Moscow placed themselves at the orders of Berlin."

Tests Hearing Ability of Lions

At the weekly meeting of the Lions Club Monday night at the Governor Clinton Hotel, John J. Way, Western Electric specialist, presented an educational picture, "Life Begins Again." It was the story of a school girl who suffered from deafness and the new world that was opened to her when corrective measures were taken. Mr. Way, who is a hearing specialist for the Hardenbergh School, was introduced by William Hardenbergh. During the evening Mr. Way tested the hearing of the various members of the club, through the courtesy of Superintendent of Schools Laidlaw using the audiometer from the high school. It was found that a number of those tested could hear three or four times better in one ear than the other.
